GRI 202: Market Presence 2016	202-1 Ratios of standard entry level wage by gender compared to local minimum wage	The reporting organization shall report the following information: a. When a significant proportion of employees are compensated based on wages subject to minimum wage rules, report the relevant ratio of the entry level wage by gender at significant locations of operation to the minimum wage. b. When a significant proportion of other workers (excluding employees) performing the organization's activities are compensated based on wages subject to minimum wage rules, describe the actions taken to determine whether these workers are paid above the minimum wage. c. Whether a local minimum wage is absent or variable at significant locations of operation, by gender. In circumstances in which different minimums can be used as a reference, report which minimum wage is being used. d. The definition used for 'significant locations of operation'.	Impact Report, Human rights and labor (p. 170) and supplier development (p. 185) and Talent Development (p. 147) sections. To promote dialogue and action in the organization with regard to pay equity, we conduct an annual compensation review to help ensure we pay fairly and to eliminate gender, racial and other discrimination in the workplace. During this review process, the executive leadership team is given an analysis of their organization's pay positions based on gender globally and ethnicity in the U.S. We make salary adjustments as necessary each year during the review process to ensure wages are market competitive and fair. The minimum wage is not gender-differentiated in China, where our operational facility is located.

Logi Impact is Logitech's framework for goal setting, action planning, personal & professional development and connecting with one another. It comprises four performance dimensions - ALIGN, ACT, DEVELOP, and CONNECT- together are designed to support and boost an individual's impact at Logitech.  Logitech is committed to sharing the vision, purpose, and strategic direction of the company as well as fostering a culture that places the whole person at its core. With that said, Logitech believes it is up to each employee to understand how their individual contributions connect, and ultimately drive personal and team achievement. Logitech's core belief is that each employee is responsible for the impact that they have have: both in their current role and in how they develop ourselves.  Logitech does not use annual performance ratings as a backwards-looking assessment. Instead, Logitech focuses on forward-looking planning and a development mindset - and provides tools and guidance for how individuals and managers can leverage Logi Impact. Logitech does not have a heavily managed process, nor do Logitech audit dialogues. Instead, the company views Logi Impact as an ongoing conversation, highly aligned with the appropriate business/project cycle for the specific team/individual.  Logitech employees are given the opportunity to feed back on areas closely correlated to performance management & development through the Logi Pulse survey which is run twice a year. The Logi Pulse is anonymous and each item is scored out of a possible 100, using a Net Promoter Score methodology. Scores over 70 are considered good and over 80 are considered very good. Typically, any item scoring below 65 would be considered as needing attention.  In December 2021, some relevant Logi Pulse items and scores were: I have clear, achievable goals for my work (73) My performance at my job is fairly evaluated (72) I am able to use my personal initiative or judgment in carrying out my work (81) I feel the work I do is recognized and appreciated (73) At work, I receive feedback that helps me grow & develop over time (71) Through my work, I often learn new skills or develop new abilities (74)
